

The Practicing Anthropologist Student Association Presents:

The 7th Annual Student Conference

Anthro+

Building Community Engagement and Social Equity in a Changing World

Saturday, March 5, 2016 from 9 am to 5 pm
Nyumburu Cultural Center
University of Maryland, College Park

How do communities and professionals engage each other in issues of global social equity? What are the benefits and challenges of conducting applied research inside and outside the boundaries of academia? Join us as we expand the horizons of anthropological method, theory, study, and practice.

Keynote Speaker: Dr. Rachel J. Watkins

Dr. Rachel J. Watkins examines the health consequences of poverty and inequality through skeletal and documentary analysis.

Breakfast and lunch provided!

Register for free at: sites.google.com/site/anthroplusconference

Contact: AnthropologyConferenceUMD@gmail.com

Anthro+ is a conference by graduate students for students of Anthropology and other disciplines. It is sponsored by the Department of Anthropology, the College of Behavioral and Social Sciences, and Graduate Student Government. This event is funded in part by your Graduate Student Activities Fee.